

Medical Executive Leadership Programme

Overview

The need for insightful and reflective leadership within the healthcare sector is more apparent than ever given increasing systemic pressures and the need for continuous improvement in patient outcomes. This programme covers critical issues including governance, board dynamics, strategic thinking, operational excellence, effective people management and leadership insights.

The Medical Executive Leadership Programme aims to support the development of current and future leaders in healthcare, who are facilitated to cultivate their own leadership styles, are equipped with the skills to become positive agents of change within the healthcare sector and are enabled to give more to patient care.

The programme will create a collaborative network of leaders in healthcare empowered to support each other in driving real change and delivering better patient outcomes.

Upon completion, participants will receive an Executive Certificate from Trinity Business School and those who are not already will be inducted into our alumni network.

Who should do this course

Senior consultants and medical professionals who wish to optimise their leadership and impact within the healthcare sector.

Course Objectives

- Equipping a new generation of medical consultants and professionals to push forward and influence healthcare policy, management and transformation - supporting them to drive patient advocacy and empowering them to effect change in a challenging healthcare system
- Enabling healthcare leaders to think about how they can directly influence strategic thinking and strategy formation in healthcare with a focus on operational excellence
- Driving shifts in a sense of identity, shared responsibility and high performance through greater focus on professional leadership development, negotiation and influencing skills in order to drive better patient outcomes
- Supporting healthcare leaders to develop their individual self-awareness and leadership style and to understand how they can contribute to shifting mind-sets toward greater patient care
- Empowering healthcare leaders to develop an entrepreneurial and innovative approach to problem solving within the healthcare system
- Enabling medical consultants and professionals to develop norms around team interactions and help them understand the part they play in high performing team development in the healthcare sector
- Integrating professional coaching to enable medical consultants and professionals to develop their resilience, unpack and explore their professional development and self-awareness.

The course comprises three four-day modules, two of which are residential to accelerate group cohesion.
